Nine candidates sign on for city council campaign

Nine candidates will run for four seats in the November, 1996, West Sacramento City Council elections. Friday was the deadline for would-be candidates to declare their intentions.

All three incumbents plan to defend their four-year seats. Among them are current mayor Greg Potnick, 44, who is a parole administrator; Bill Kristoff, 49, who listed his occupation as a businessman and manages a Broderick neighborhood post office; and Cindy Tuttle, 37, a management adviser who works for Property Management Services in West Sacramento.

Challenging them are Mark Montemayor, 25, listed as an elderly care administrator; Jim Cahill, 37, a financial advisor; and Marna Miller, 51, who does not list an occupation.

None of the challengers is a previous city council candidate.

The election will be held "at large." The top three vote-getters from among this pool of three incumbents and three challengers will win seats on the five-person West Sacramento City Council.

Running in a separate election are three more challengers, hoping to fill the remaining two-year term of former councilman Roland Hensley, 69, who resigned in April for health reasons.

Legislative deputy Christopher Cabaldon, 30, will mount his second challenge for the city council in this race. He will be joined by businesswoman Dorothy Adamo, 69, who is a political activist and successfully chaired the campaign to defeat the anti-industrial growth initiative Measure B in 1990; and Charles Moore, a 49-year old businessman and longtime member of the West Sacramento Planning Commission.

The winner will fill Hensley's former seat for a two-year term.

The only city council member not up for re-election is Wes Beers, who was elected to the council in 1990 and won re-election in 1994.

Deadline for school board race extended

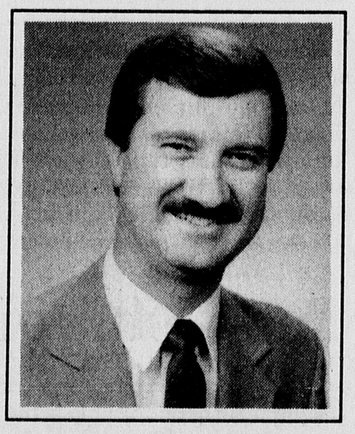

Four people have declared their candidacy for three trustees' seats on the Washington Unified School District school board in West Sacramento.

But since incumbent Stuart Knox opted not to file for re-election by the Aug. 9 cutoff, the deadline period for new entrants has been automatically extended until 5:00 p.m. today (Aug. 14).

Incumbents Evelyn (Irene) Eklund and Patricia A. Flint both filed for candidacy.

As of Tuesday, they were joined by two challengers: Hal Williams, listed as a retired educator, but also a former school board member and board president himself; and Elsa J. (Sue) Glenn, listed as a food service consultant.

These four contenders, as well as any late entrants to the race today, will compete for three spots on the five-person school board.

STUART KNOX will not run again

School board terms are four years, and trustees are elected "at large"; that is, without regard to special districts within the WUSD voting area.

Bob Martinez will cease being county sheriff Dec. 31

■ Elected as former sheriff Rod Graham headed off for a jail term, current sheriff Bob Martinez will resign his office after six years of service

By Steve Marschke

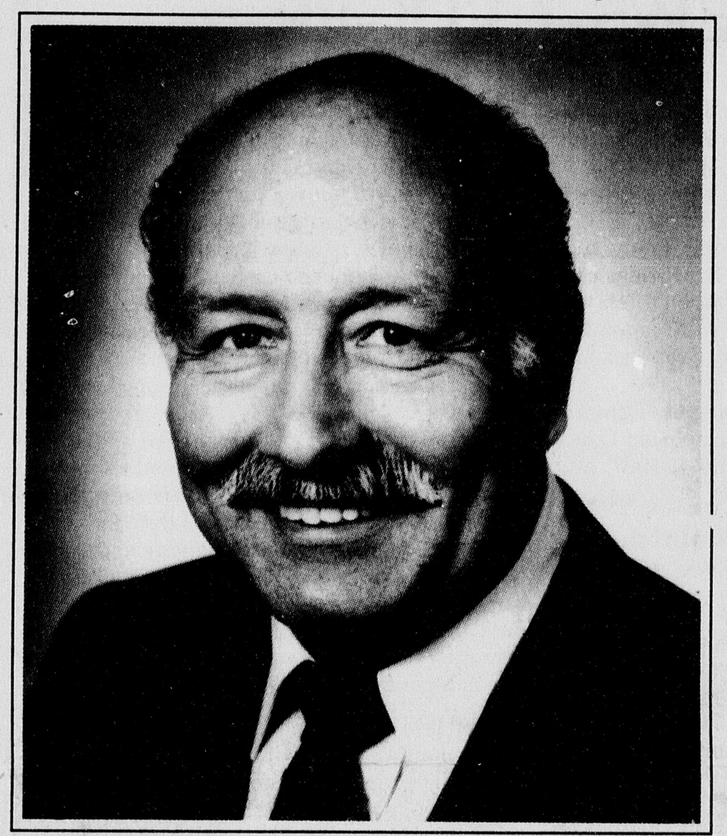

One early morning last December, Bob Martinez was making the commute from his West Sacramento home to his job as Yolo County Sheriff/Coroner, headquartered in Woodland, when he got the first inkling his days as sheriff were numbered.

"It was foggy on the river road, and I said to myself, 'Holy Smokes, Bob, you've been travelling this road since 1949-50, when you were being bused to high school in Woodland. Haven't you had enough?' "

So earlier this month, Martinez announced that he will resign his office at the end of the year, half-way through his second term of office. Newly married and feeling "it is time for a change," he will return full time to his instructor's position in justice administration at Sacramento City College.

Martinez, 62, is a native of New Mexico who has lived in the Bryte neighborhood of West Sacramento's northwestern area since 1945. With an accessible, conversational manner, he has remained a part time instructor at the college in the years since his election to the sheriff's post in Woodland.

He won the post in a late-1990 election, taking over the next January, but the election was only part of a larger story. Former sheriff Rod Graham and his undersheriff, Wendell Luttrell, were both caught up as part of an FBI "Shrimpscam" undercover sting operation, after setting up a phony shrimping operation and catching a number of state legislators in bribes and related shenanigans. Graham, too, received jail time.

Martinez saw his job partly as restoring order and respect to the Yolo County Sheriff's Department following that disgrace. He sees a number of successes in his service after taking office, and was re-elected after being unopposed in the 1994 ballot.

"We had to come in and reorganize the department and initiate some changes," Martinez commented. "Whenever change is implemented, somebody's going to be upset. For instance, we didn't have 24-hour patrol. (Sheriff's department) patrols would cease at 2:30 a.m., and wouldn't start up again until 9 a.m."

To finance 24-hour patrols in the unincorporated (non-city) parts of the county, deputies' schedules had to be shuffled and some had to give up some pay. This had led to strained relations with the deputies' union, Martinez said, but on the whole, his term in office has been positive.

Martinez said he has also emphasized cross-training his deputies, so they are capable of covering for each other in different tasks and positions, and this too has caused friction.

"My philosophy is if you're a deputy, you should be able to function in any capacity in the department in an emergency," he said. But some deputies have resented being forced to budge from existing schedules and duties.

"We have some litigation now going on because some of those individuals don't want to move from their 8 to 5 jobs, with holidays off."

Martinez pointed out that during the 1992 "blue flu" sickout among officers of the West Sacramento Police Department, sheriff's department supervisory personnel had to provide the policing services to West Sacramento. Had the sickout gone on any longer than it did, lower ranked personnel would have been needed to patrol West Sacramento.

In other "mutual aid" emergencies, the department was one of many to send law enforcement officers to help Los Angeles cope with the riots which followed the Rodney King case verdict, and to support efforts at wildfire sites elsewhere in the state.

With 208 personnel -- including 82 sworn officers, the department is responsible for patrolling a large area, ranging from Clarksburg and the Sacramento River west to the edge of the coastal mountain range. The department also manages the county's prisoner detention facilities in Woodland, provides court security, and contracts to deliver animal control services to Yolo's four cities.

Martinez is also proud that the Wintun Indian tribe has agreed to finance the costs of two deputies and a squad car to patrol the Capay Valley area in the county's west (a $148,000 cost this year).

But he agrees with a recent grand jury report that low salaries in his department make it hard for personnel to stick around for long.

"When you look at the salaries the sheriff's department is paid, comparing it with places like the Sacramento sheriff's department and Sacramento Police Department, I can't blame these young people with families for leaving to take care of their families," Martinez said.

City receives $500,000 for housing rehab in older areas

(Melinda Posner of the West Sacramento Redevelopment and Housing Agency provided information for this report)

The West Sacramento Housing and Redevelopment Agency has received $500,000 in grant funds for repair and renovation of homes within the city and $35,000 in planning and technical assistance funds to conduct a city-wide mobile home and park study.

Funding is provided by the California Dept. of Housing and Community Development.

The $500,000 grant will be used to make low-interest loans to residents of older homes identified within city target areas. and are to be used for housing rehabilitation. The money is expected to benefit low-income residents.

Since 1987, over 140 homes in West Sacramento have received similar assistance.

Mobile homes represent 13 percent of the city's housing stock, and the $35,000 planning and technical assistance grant is intended to help survey those units, determining the need for

Pac Bell plans tower up to 105 feet tall

Location near Linden Rd. & South River Road will be discussed Thursday

By Steve Marschke

A 64- to 105-foot cellular phone service tower may be installed in a parcel near a residential Linden Road area, and at least a few area residents are not happy about the idea.

According to a "photo simulation" of the proposed tower, it will be a single, skinny pole extending about the adjacent treeline on the north side of Linden Road a few hundred feet west of South River Road. Near the top of the pole will be a set of relatively small "dishes" designed to relay signals from cellular phone users in the area.

DIANE VIRDEE

The actual height depends on how many different phone service providers are permitted to hook up to the monopole, with an extra company or two requiring additional height and additional sets of dishes. Being able to put two or three companies' relay stations on the same tower would mean fewer towers will have to be built in the region, according to a city staff report which recommends that option.

The permit for the pole is being sought by Pacific Bell Mobile Services, on land owned by Kenneth and Margaret DeSouza of West Sacramento. A city staff member coordinating the project -- which goes up for review by the planning commission Thursday evening at a public meeting -- could not immediately be reached for comment.

But resident Cara Boehler, a resident of Linden Road opposite the proposed tower site, says she doesn't think her home had received any notice from the city about the plans for the pole.

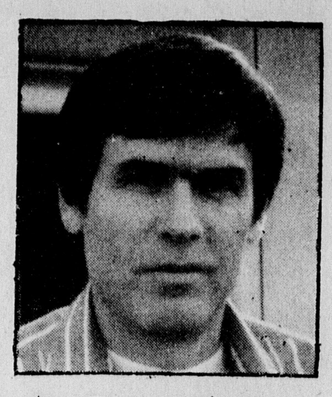

And Linden Rd. resident Diane Virdee, who owns a half-share in the parcel next to the

How a bad reputation can sometimes be good

Daryl is on vacation this week. We thought you would enjoy this column, reprinted from a little while back. -- Editor

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

I was sharing a table the other day at the Pot Belly Deli with some people when one of them (he lives on the other side of the bridge and has no idea that this column even exists, much less that his words might appear in it) suddenly insisted on knowing why I like living in West Sacramento.

"Oh, lots of reasons," I told him. "To begin with, it's right smack dab in the center of everything. For instance, when I feel like going to the foothills, they're only 30-minutes away. If I want to spend some time in the high mountains, Lake Tahoe is just another hour or so up the same road. When I get an urge to be in a big city, the best big city in the world, San Francisco, is only an hour and a half away, and when I want to spend a day at the ocean, I just...."

"No, no, no," he interrupted me, shaking his head, "I didn't mean why do you like living in the Sacramento area -- I can understand that -- I like it, too. What I really want to know is why in the world do you continue living in this god-awful place -- in West Sacramento?"

"Well," I said as tactfully as I could, "I guess because it's home. I was born and raised in West Sacramento. My parents moved here from the Midwest right after my dad returned from World War Two and they bought a little house in a place called Westfield Village, which is over by Westfield School."

"That's by McDonalds, on West Capitol Avenue, isn't it?" he asked with a startled expression.

"That's right," I said.

"So you grew up near West Capitol Avenue, right by all those rundown motels?" he asked, even more surprised.

"A few blocks away," I said, "on Michigan Boulevard, if you know where that is."

"Do you know what kind of reputation West Capitol Avenue has over by where I live?" he asked as he took another bite out of his low-fat turkey sandwich, which only had mustard on it because he had just heard that deli sandwiches can often be fatal if you throw all caution to the wind and put some mayonnaise on them.

"It wasn't always that way," I assured him. "When I was young, West Capitol Avenue was part of the main road which ran between San Francisco and Lake Tahoe. That's why there's so many motels. They used to be filled up with really friendly travelers and they were a great place to hang out when I was a kid, especially during the summer."

"Why?"

"Because most of them had a swimming pool and me and my friends would put on our bathing suits, hide our bikes in some nearby bushes, and sneak into them when no one was looking and pretend we were the kids of some of the people who had spent the night. The manager would usually get wise after awhile, but it was sure a great way to cool off when it got really hot."

"All I know," he said with emphasis," is that every time I've driven down West Capitol Avenue, I've felt like I was taking my life into my own hands."

"Really?" I said with a smile.

"I'm serious," he assured me. "Judging from some of the low-lifes I've seen hanging around those motels, you must have a terrible crime problem over here."

As the man continued to harangue me with all the other horrible things he had heard about West Sacramento from people who don't live here, I debated with myself as to whether or not I should waste the last few minutes of my lunch hour trying to tell him the truth, that West Sacramento has thousands of wonderful people living in it; that most of them can still safely go for leisurely walks after the sun goes down; that our schools are a lot less violent and drug infested than the ones in Sacramento County; that it only takes us five minutes to commute into Sacramento while everybody else is stuck in traffic mouthing epithets at each other; and best of all, that we have somehow managed to preserve a small town atmosphere here which once could be found throughout the United States.

Then, knowing that one of the reasons West Sacramento is still a great place to live is because most of the people who make their homes on the other side of the bridge are scared to death to step foot inside our city limits, I put on my most convincing expression, wiped off a big glob of mayonnaise from the side of my mouth and said, "Well, I've got to get going. I don't like to leave my car in a West Sacramento parking lot too long -- vandalism, you know."

He nodded that he understood and I headed on back to work, hoping that I had done my small part to keep the worst element of all out of West Sacramento.

Parents: kids entering day care or school need shots

Children entering school or day care this fall must be up-to-date on their immunizations (shots) according to Yolo County Health Officer Dr. Robert Bates. Parents will be required to provide a record of immunizations before their child can be admitted to school or day care for the first time.

"Diseases like measles spread rapidly, so it is important that children be protected before they face potential exposure in a school or day care environment," Dr. Bates said. "That is why the State has very specific requirements about the various types of immunizations required, the age at which they are to be given and the records required as evidence."

Records will list shots by type of vaccine and the dates the immunizations were given. State law requires immunizations for Polio, DTP (Diphtheria, Tetanus and Pertussis), MMR (Measles, Mumps and Rubella), Hepatitis B and H influenza, type b (Hib). Immunizations typically begin when a child is 2-3 months old and follow a specific regimen. A booster is often required before entering kindergarten.

"If you are not certain that your child has had all required shots, it is important to contact your doctor or clinic now," Dr. Bates said. "Be certain you have an up-to-date immunization record when you take your child to school or day care for the first time." Schools and day care facilities are not permitted to admit children who have incomplete or missing immunization records.

Yolo County will hold a number of Back-to-School Immunization Clinics during August and September. In West Sacramento, the clinic will be held on Tuesdays between 2 and 4 p.m. at 500 W. Jefferson Blvd. Parents bringing their children to the clinics are encouraged to bring the child's immunization records.

"This program is designed to provide the best available protection from common childhood diseases," Dr. Bates said. "By following the recommended immunization schedule, parents can assure their child will not suffer unnecessarily from these preventable illnesses.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Elusive growth

You may have noticed the news item a couple of weeks ago from the county assessor's office.

The item lamented slow growth in assessed property values throughout the county, including the cities of Davis, Woodland and Winters as well as unincorporated areas. The slow increases in assessed values were blamed largely on the continuing slow economy, which has led to little new construction.

But there was one jurisdiction where growth took a step backwards in the past year, and assessed values actually decreased. You guessed it -- West Sacramento. This is a particularly bitter pill for local leaders, who are actually the "odd man out" in Yolo County by actually seeking growth and construction.

Most other areas are trying to slow it down. We have seen this paradox other ways. Woodland residents have been trying to fight off a proposed Walmart store which they feel will threaten their downtown, for example, while West Sacramento has been unable to bribe Walmart into taking a serious look.

This makes it 1,664 Wednesdays in a row for the News-Ledger, not counting a special issue here or there.

Next week, you'll see the volume number listed on the front page change from "32" to "33," as the News-Ledger starts another year.

The News-Ledger put out its first issue on August 26, 1964 (was it this hot then?) with the late Julius Feher and Michael Garten at the helm. An ad at the bottom of the front page asked for new subscribers at $1 per year (sorry prices had to go up) and a photo on front showed the old Capitol Inn, designed in imitation of the state capitol across the river.

When Feher died in 1988, Garten continued publication, and still owns the paper and lives in town.

As is pointed out from time to time, this remains the last locally owned, independent newspaper in the county. As is not pointed out often enough, the News-Ledger owes you for your continuing support.

Letters to the Editor

Successful Night Out

Three cheers to the West Sacramento Police Department for its efforts in last Thursday's "National Night Out Against Crime!!"

It is through these efforts and the important work by officers Lisa Cox and Kathy Hill of the Neighborhood Watch Program that our residents at West Capitol Courtyard, Holly Courts and Washington Courtyard are learning to work together to create safe neighborhoods and to strengthen their relationships with the police. This work is especially important in helping to create a vision of a safe and secure environment in which our youth can growth up.

The play activities included the youth using a trampoline while the pot luck and National Night Out activities took place. The youth benefited from the meaningful experience of soliciting donations from residents and nearby businesses to pay for the rental of the trampoline.

Again, many thanks to the Police Department along with the West Sacramento Fire Department and the West Sacramento Recycling Program for making this such a successful event.

Elder Dr. Nite Out

National Night Out was a great success on Elder Drive in West Sacramento, on August 6. Thanks to the leadership and organization of the neighborhood watch captains, Manual Islas, Billie Gastineau, Eleanor Beveridge and Nadyne Cumbra, and the enthusiasm of the neighborhood residents, there were over 70 people in attendance. There were balloons, buttons and badges for the kids, provided by the Police Department, Friday Night Live and Vince and Larry, the crash car dummies. It was a time to share good food and conversation.

All the residents would like to extend a special thank you to all the following city officials for their support and special visit during our celebration:

The West Sacramento Police Department; the West Sacramento Fire Department; Friday Night Live; Vince and Larry (the crash car dummies); McGruff; Earth Shock; Jack Recreation; and West Sacramento City Council members Bill Kristoff and Cindy Tuttle.

Child-related mediation

It has been over fifteen years since the State of California first instituted mandatory mediation in child custody and visitation disputes (Cal.Civ. Code, sec. 4607 (1981).)

Mediation of child-related issues is a critical endeavor given the importance of the decisions made in the process. Thus more than five years ago additional legislation mandated and held Superior court judges in each of the fifty-eight counties in the State of California with responsibility to ensure the mediator service operates at high standards of professional competence and integrity.

Concerning program accountability of court-connected mediators in family law matters, the uniform standards stipulate, in relevant part: "Each court is strongly encouraged to establish a policy in writing regarding handling of complaints from parties, attorneys, and interested persons" (Cal. Rules of Court, appendix 26 [West's Cal. Rules of Court (State ed. 1996) p. 922].)

Of the fifty-eight counties in the State of California, to date only six counties, including the County of Yolo, have no official policy for handling such client complaints.

To ensure the court-connected mediators in family law matters advance the welfare of families, respect the rights of the parties, and ensure the service is used appropriately, we need this family-friendly policy in place in the County of Yolo. Our children deserve no less. To show your support for this policy and why, please write to: Hon. Doris L. Shockley; Presiding Judge of the Superior/Municipal Court; County of Yolo; 725 Court Street, Room 103; Woodland, CA 95695.

'Fiddler' coming soon to a roof near you

From Music Circus Sacramento Light Opera Association

One of the all-time great musicals of the American theater -- "Fiddler on the Roof" -- returns to Sacramento Light Opera Association's Music Circus this August 12-18.

"Fiddler on the Roof," winner of ten Tony awards in 1965 including best musical, is based on the "Tevye Stories" by the Yiddish short story writer who called himself Shalom Aleichem. Tevye, a Jewish peasant living in Russia under the rule of an anti-Semitic Czar, is a well-loved member of his village. He does, however, face many troubles: his family's poverty, his sharp-tongued wife and three marriageable daughters for whom he can provide no dowries.

Worse yet, the beliefs he holds so dear are being challenged as his daughters approach non-traditional marriages. Tevye's simple life is torn between the love he feels for his family and his devotion to the old Jewish traditions. But he and his family survive the changes, the therein lies the show's life-affirming morals. "Fiddler" is a musical that makes its audiences feel like dancing in the aisles with its songs and excitement, yet its emotion has put lumps in the throats of many.

Lenny Wolpe, seen in last season's Broadway Series production of "Gypsy," will lead the cast in the role of Tevye. Mr. Wolpe is a Music Circus regular, performing in such shows as "The Pirates of Penzance," "My Fair Lady," "The Music Man," "The Wizard of Oz," and "Hello, Dolly," to name a few.

"Fiddler on the Roof" runs August 12-18 with performances Monday through Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Tickets range from $19 to $35 and are available at the Music Circus box office, 1419 H Street, or at any BASS location -- phone numbers are 557-1999, or 923-BASS.

LETTERS from p. 5

Area code crunch

Re: So few numbers, so many telephones (Bee, 8/9/96): Latest PUC decision leaves only Sacramento County and West Sacramento in the 916 area code. Before long, the Capital County will need two or more area codes, given the dramatic increase in demand for more phone numbers. Technical advances and a wealthier nation have brought the demand for more phone numbers from far less than one per family to two or more per household. Hefty population increases cannot be discounted, either.

Back about 1950 our phone numbers had only five digits and out leaders decided to go to seven digits, with the first two being the first two letters of someone's name -- for easier remembering.

So rather than crunch ourselves to death with more (and smaller) area codes to change and re-remember, let's just go from seven to eight local digits and simply ADD A ZERO TO THE END OF ALL EXISTING PHONE #'S! Suddenly we would have (for good cause) ten times as many, or nine times more than we now have. Adding a zero is much easier to do and remember than changing area codes on so many folks' stationery, etc.

Australia has already taken the step of going from seven to eight digits, so we know it can be done. With ten times the numbers, New York City could return to one area code (from three).

And, yes, adding a zero to all numbers now in use seems easier than the proposed overlaying for new area codes and numbers.

All aboard for special train ride

Commuters racing up and down I-5 may not take much time to think of what travel must have been like in the days when the fastest way of getting from Woodland to West Sacramento was by train. Well, your chance is here!

Conductor John McMahan's shouts of "All Aboard" can be heard once again during the second Annual Harvestfest Wine Train Trip, which is set for September 5, according to Cyndi Blickle, Chairperson of the Woodland Chamber of Commerce. The public is invited to join the Chamber on a two-and-a-half hour, fun-filled excursion to West Sacramento and back aboard the Yolo Shortline Railroad. Wondering what you might be doing for all of that time besides getting a close-up view of the Sacramento River, some of the most productive farmland in the world and certainly the prettiest countryside in California?

There will be food (pasta salad, fruit salad, chicken strips, beverages, rolls and hors d'oeuvres). There will also be wine-tasting, featuring the wines of Yolo County. And, to top it all off, there will be music to add to the fun.

The Yolo Shortline will take you along one of the last operating segments of the original Sacramento Northern Interurban Railway. You will have your choice of riding in the open observation car or in the air-conditioned coach. The Railway was used extensively in the early 1900's to run trolleys back and forth to Sacramento. When the automobile then became the preferred source of transportation for people, commercial traffic then became the primary purpose of the Railway.

In 1918 the Woodland Branch became part of the Sacramento Northern Railway, and in 1927 it was acquired by the Western Pacific Railroad, which kept the Sacramento Northern name. Western Pacific merged with the Union Pacific Railroad in 1985. Yolo Shortline then purchased this branch in 1992.

The Yolo Shortline train will leave its station across from Cracchiolos on East Main Street in Woodland at 5:30 p.m. on Thursday, September 5. To order your Boarding Pass, contact Lee Williams at the Woodland Chamber of Commerce, 662-7327. Cost for the Boarding Pass will be $25.00.

RESIDENTS WHO LIVE INSIDE DOTTED LINES may be eligible for low income grants for home rehabilitation through a state grant program and the city redevelopment agency

The week in local government

A meeting of the West Sacramento Planning Commission will take place on Thursday, August 15, at 6 p.m. in city council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd. in West Sacramento.

Parents of Native American Students and secondary school Native American students of the Washington Unified School District, as well as interested community members, are urged to attend the Indian Education Advisory Committee (IEAC) meeting, Tuesday, August 20, at 6 p.m. in room 17 at the District Office. 50 years

From Auxiliary Post No. 8762
West Sacramento

It was August 14, 1945, that Japan surrendered, and troops from West Sacramento returned home. The Veterans of Foreign Wars began recruiting for members the following year. Entering their 50th year, the West Sacramento Post 8762 elected "Charter" members and natives of West Sacramento: Bernice Gwinn, Auxiliary President; and Robert (Bob) Lukins, Post Commander, Veterans Foreign Wars of West Sacramento Post 8762.

Bernice is retired from the school district and is involved in many hours of community activities. She was president in 1959-60, and 1974-75. This will be a first for Bob, who has retired from the construction business. He was also in the Corps of Army Engineers.

This December will the post's Golden anniversary celebration.

New bike!

Melissa Anderson of Vacaville has become Denny's Restaurant's latest winner of the BMX bicycle giveaway contest.

The restaurant is located near Enterprise Blvd. in West Sacramento, and children accompanied by an adult may register for the contest at that location. Bicycles are donated by Tiller's Bicycles on West Capitol Ave. Melissa, 9, goes to Sierra Vista Elementary School. She says she eats at Denny's because they have "good food."

"They are nice," she added. Her hobbies are coin collecting, reading and making crafts.

said the cellular phone plan will disrupt development plans in the area, and that residents weren't properly notified of the hearing on the tower.

"Two neighbors across the street, directly across from the tower, told me that were not notified," she said. Virdee's parcel next door to it -- about 3.4 acres large -- is itself zoned for residential development, but Virdee worries that having a 64 to 105 foot tower virtually an arm's reach across the property line will endanger the chance to sell homes.

"I'm really worried people will be less willing to buy homes in the area," she commented. "Just seeing the tower here will make it more difficult to develop."

Virdee added that it is her understanding that if residential development takes place, the tower will be taken down.

"I think that's a Catch-22," she said. "It will prevent development. Furthermore, we already have residential development here (a few hundred feet away, on the south side of Linden)."

Pacific Bell Mobile Services has said that one purpose of the tower is to fill a service gap which leaves the Jefferson Blvd. corridor without dependable cellular phone relays.

Virdee said she has heard that the tower is also intended to serve Sacramento's Land Park area, and that it hasn't been politically expedient for the tower to be located on that side of the river.

Virdee operates a nursery and Christmas tree farm which she is now phasing out with an eye towards selling off her eastern property (bordering the tower site) for development.

The city's staff report on the project recommends using paint and surrounding vegetation to help the proposed cell phone tower blend into its environment.

lieutenant in the California Highway Patrol or a sergeant or lieutenant in the Sacramento sheriff's department make more money than I do (as sheriff of Yolo County).

It remains to be seen when the county will be able to afford bringing these salaries closer to parity, he said, although Martinez had praise for efforts of the board of supervisors in improving law enforcement -- and building new facilities, like an administration center and morgue -- in other ways.

One change in his life that contributed to his decision to resign was his recent marriage.

Martinez said he was on a trip to Costa Rica when he met Jody Crochet, "a little Cajun lady from Houma, Louisiana," in the jungle.

"We met, we had dinner, romance blossomed," he said. The couple married July 6 in Florida. Martinez hopes to have a little more time and freedom to enjoy his new marital status.

When he finally decides to retire from teaching, he said, he hopes to have a summer home in northern New Mexico (altitude 7,800) and a winter home somewhere south of the border "where the sun always shines."

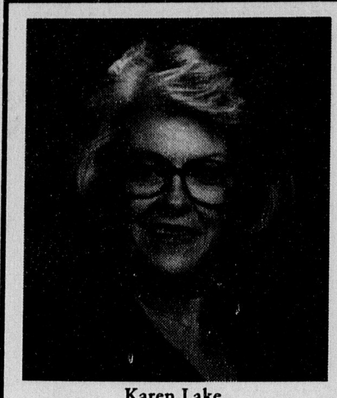

Martinez's retirement will end a career with the department that began when he was appointed as a deputy sheriff in 1959 by then-sheriff Forrest Monroe. He worked in different functions and capacities in the department, retiring in 1984 with a captain's rank. His election to the top post in 1990 returned him to the department.

The board of supervisors has a choice to make in filling the vacancy made by the departure of Martinez from the sheriff's office Dec. 31.

It could opt for a special election, which would be costly, said Martinez.

Or it could choose to follow his suggestion and appoint undersheriff Bart Simpson to fill the remaining two years of the term.

The supervisors are expected to tackle that issue "around the end of the year," Martinez said.
